

Financial Management Support

Managing charity finances can be complex and may be difficult to understand and navigate.

CISWO helps miners' welfare charity trustees to understand your charities finances and your responsibilities in managing them effectively.

Guidance on trustee financial responsibilities

We help trustees understand your financial obligations and ensure compliance with legal and regulatory requirements set by the Charity Commission, OSCR, HMRC, and other stakeholders, including employees and beneficiaries.

Understanding Financial Statements

We provide clear explanations of financial statements, helping trustees understand the meaning behind the figures and identifying key information necessary for day-to-day management. We also offer insights into your charity's financial performance.

THE COAL MINING CHARITY

Planning for the future

We help trustees to understand how financial decisions impact the charity's finances in the short and longer term. We can provide tools to help with modelling and looking at different financial scenarios.

Help with challenges

We can help you to understand your income and costs. We can provide advice on increasing income through the use of your building and grounds, to help you balance money coming in and out.

Cost allocation

We offer advice and guidance on the allocation of costs between your charity and social club, ensuring accuracy and compliance in your financial accounts.

Why CISWO?

We have extensive knowledge and understanding of the miners' welfare model, and the challenges and opportunities you face. We are uniquely placed to provide personalised guidance bespoke to your organisation.
